Levant Trade Review

PUBLISHED BY THE

American Chamber of Commerce for the Levant.

ADMIRAL MARK L. BRISTOL

United States High Commissioner

The United States has had a High Commissioner as representative in Turkey just one year this month. After breaking off diplomatic relations with Turkey in 1917 the United States had relied on the favor of neutral countries through their representatives here as channel for negotiating affairs that concern her citizens, and is still using this method for all ordinary affairs. With the signing of the Armistice and the institution of the Allied control in Turkey for the interim until the definite peace, the necessity of more direct handling of American affairs in Turkey and protection of the interests of the United States in this country led to the appointment of a Commissioner. Mr. Lewis Heck first held the office of Commissioner until his departure for America in April, 1919.

In January, 1919, Admiral Bristol was taken from his duties with the Peace Commission at Paris, and sent to Constantinople as chief representative of the United States in Turkey. As Commissioner and, from August, 1919, as High Commissioner here he has been a thoroughly American leader, not only in the protection of American interests but in the initiative and energy which he has shown in all fields and in all affairs in which America and the Levant could be related.

It was the great privilege and pleasure of the American Chamber of Commerce for the Levant at Constantinople to welcome Admiral Bristol at a reception at Tokatlian's on February 14th, last year, shortly after his arrival in the city. Since that time the Admiral has continuously had his finger on the pulse of this eastern world, has studied its movements and its needs with his able body of assistants and active fleet, until advice, direction and clear means of assistance have become the ready work of every day.

The Bureau of the American Chamber of Commerce for the Levant is temporarily located at 9-10, 4th floor, Omer Abid Han, Galata. After October 1st the Chamber will occupy permanent offices in the new Yaldiz Han, Galata, just off Karakeuy.

At the annual meeting of the Chamber of Commerce in January the High Commissioner outlined his promise and plans which would support and develop its activity. The Chamber can gladly testify to this cooperation that has stimulated its organization and led to measures to increase its efficiency and the benefits of its service. A paragraph from the address at this General Meeting suggests the privileges that have favored us during the past year through the keen interest of the High Commissioner in the work of the Chamber:

"I desire to take this opportunity to tell you that personally and officially I take the greatest interest in the success of your organization. I want you to feel that the United States High Commission is ready to assist you in every way possible. All branches of this Commission, representing the State Department, the Army, the Navy, the Department of Commerce, the UnitediStates Shipping Board, and the Financial representative of our Peace Delegation, are all here to assist American interests. We want the American Chamber of Commerce to feel that it is included in this Commission. It is my desire that together we form a complete combination working for the best interests of America. At the same time that we work for American interests we should demonstrate to others that we are working on the basis of recognizing the equal rights of all other countries".

The first step made by the United States government in safe-guarding the interest of American commerce in the Near East was a vote for the maintenance of the Capitulations. Then a month after Admiral Bristol's arrival the blockade of Turkey was raised. An Advisory Trade Committee of the Associated Governments was instituted to investigate all questions affecting unrestricted commerce with Turkey and the Black Sea ports, and to report to the High Commissioners. Until recently the High Commissioner represented the Shipping Board in the Near East, which now has its permanent representative in this region. The work of the Chamber and the activity of its members has thus been directly dependent on the United States High Commission, and the able work of the High Commissioner has brought the American Chamber new life and vigor during the past year.

Admiral Mark L. Bristol graduated from the United States Naval Academy, Annapolis, Maryland, in June, 1887. At that time young naval officers were required to make a two years' cruise at sea as Midshipmen, and then pass a final examination in order to be commissioned as Ensigns. This first cruise was made on the North Atlantic Station, which includes Canada, the east coast of the United States and the West Indies.

His next cruise was along the Pacific Coast, on surveying duty. But in less than a year he was transferred to a man-of-war, which at that time was a full-rigged sailing ship, and made the trip from San Francisco to New York under sail. This trip required 106 days, and is believed to have established a record for such a warship.

Then followed a cruise of three years to the China Station on the gunboat «PETREL». She was one of the first ships of America's new navy. She was a little larger than the "SCORPION", but in those three years she cruised from New York to China, made two summer cruises in Behring Sea, and covered over 53,000 miles. These summer cruises in Behring Sea were with the international patrol fleet which protected the fur seal fisheries.

One year was next spent on shore duty, and then another year on U. S. S. «St Marys», an old full-rigged sailing frigate, with a summer cruise to Ireland, England and Europe.

Three years were spent on sea duty aboard the battleship «TEXAS.» She was the first modern battleship of the American Navy, but has long since passed off the list, being finally used as a target for experimental gun practice. She took a prominent part in the Spanish War, in service for most of its duration on the south coast of Cuba, blockading the Spanish forces in Santiago and engaging in the battle when they attempted to escape,

A year and a half was then spent on shore duty at the Naval Gun Factory in Washington, supervising the manufacture of guns, gun carriages and

Then followed a cruise with the North Atlantic Fleet. About six months were spent on board the battleship «MASSACHUSETTS», and later as Aide on the Staff of the Commander-in-Chief of the Fleet, Rear Admiral Francis J. Higginson. The first battleship force of the American Navy was organised under Rear Admiral Higginson. Likewise, a new system of target practice was tried out by this battleship force. It was based upon a system that Admiral Sir Percy Scott of the British Navy had developed in China, and was introduced into our navy by the efforts of Lieutenant-Commander Sims, now Rear Admiral Sims, who during the late war was Commander of the U. S. Naval Forces Operating in Europe. This cruise was completed by serving for several months as Gunnery Officer on the Staff of Rear Admiral Cotten, in European waters.

After the duty in Europe, a year was spent in the Bureau of Ordnance, Navy Department, Washington, in charge of the production of mines, torpedoes and fire control appliances. During this duty Admiral Bristol, then Lieutenant-Commander Bristol, prepared the first rules for torpedo and mining practices according to the new system of target practices; likewise, he carried out the first experiments with telepones such as now are used for fire-control purposes. In the spring of 1905, the first battleship fleet of sixteen vessels was organized, and the late Rear Admiral Robley D. Evans, popularly known as «FIGHTING BOB», took command of this fleet at Pensacola. Lieutenant Commander Bristol was Gunnery Officer on the Staff of Admiral Evans, and served in this capacity for two and a half years. He then became the Executive («Commander») of Admiral Evans' flagship, the «CONNECTICUT». He served as such for the trip around the world in 1907-8, and was detached and ordered to shore duty when Admiral Evans was relieved.

For the following three years he served on shore duty, in command of the Naval Torpedo Station in Newport, Rhode Island, and was promoted to the rank of Commander. Under his command a great development took place in the production of the Station, and the force of employees was increased from less than one hundred to over five hundred. Three months were spent in Europe studying the methods employed in foreign countries in the manufacture and supply of torpedoes and mines.

Proceeding to the China Station by way of the Suez Canal, Commander Bristol spent two years in command of vessels on the China Station. This was during the period of the revolution in China, when the Manchu government was overthrown and a republic was established. The «ALBANY», under his command, won the pennant two years in succession for «Excellence» in gunnery; in addition, the "ALBANY " fired the first salute at Wuchang, China, to the Chinese republican flag after the Chinese Republic had been recognized by the United States. At this time a call was made on the Vice President of the Chinese republic, Li Yuen Hung, who returned this call on board the "ALBANY ». Twice during this cruise the ship's landing force was used ashore to protect American citizens.

In July, 1913, he was promoted to Captain, and in the autumn of the same year returned to the United States and served on shore duty until March, 1916. During this period Captain Bristol was in charge of the development of aeronautics for the American Navy. In the spring of 1916 the American Navy

Three types of aircraft had been adopted and were being developed. These were: the seaplane, the dirigible, and the kite baloon. A wind tunnel, with laboratories for testing all kinds of aircraft and aircraft machinery had been constructed at the Navy Yard in Washington. Congress authorized a National Advisory Committee for Aeronautics, and Captain Bristol was a member of the first committee organized.

In March, 1916, Captain Bristol was ordered to command the Cruiser NORTH CAROLINA, and to develop aeronautics in the Fleet. On January 1st, 1917, he was assigned to duty at the United States Naval War College, Newport, R.I., but in April returned to command the "NORTH CAROLINA", and first joined the Fleet at Yorktown, Virginia, but was very soon after detailed for duty in convoying troop ships to Europe. This duty continued for several months, until March, 1918, when he assumed command of the "OKLAHOMA", which was part of the Sixth Battleship Division.

In August, 1918, the «OKLAHOMA», with the Sixth Battleship Division, proceeded to Bere Haven, Ireland, from which base this Division operated until the Armistice.

Captian Bristol was promoted to Rear Admiral on the first of July, 1918, but by special request was left in command of the "OKLAHOMA" when she was ordered abroad. In October, 1918, he was detached from the "OKLAHOMA" and ordered to command the U. S. Naval Base at Plymouth, England. This base had been specially organized and equipped for hunting submarines in the English Channel and off Land's End.

In November, immediately after the Armistice, Admiral Bristol served for three weeks as a member of an International Armistice Commission sent to Belgium to see that the Germans carried out the terms of the Armistice.

On the first of January, 1919, he was ordered to special duty in Turkey. Diplomatic duties were required in addition to his command of the U.S. Naval Forces in the Near East. On August, 12th 1919, he was commissioned by the President of the United States as United States High Commissioner to Turkey, with duty as Commander of U.S. Naval Forces in Turkish waters also retained.

On August 14th, he was appointed a member of an International Commission for the investigation of the circumstances in connection with the occupation of Smyrna and its surrounding districts by the Greek forces. This duty was completed on October 14th, 1919.

Rear Admiral Bristol has had a little more than thirty seven years of naval service. Of this 22 years and 9 months have been at sea, and 14 years and 6 months on shore duty or other service.

NEW AVENUES OF TRADE IN THE NEAR EAST

By LEWIS HECK

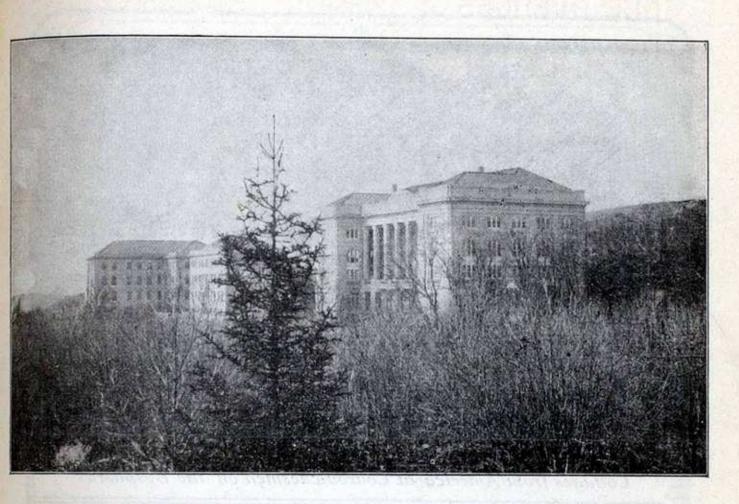

PUBLIC UTILITIES AND CONSTRUCTION PROJECTS

Though in the more advanced countries of the Near East most of the larger cities have the usual public services—street-cars, electric light, gas, waterworks—Constantinople had no electric cars, electric current, lights or telephone system until the end of 1913. Cities of more than two hundred thousand population, like Smyrna or Aleppo, as yet have none of these modern facilities. The Constantinople telephone system is partially equipped with American apparatus and has worked well under British management—even if the operators are required to know four languages, Turkish, French, Greek and Armenian. In such matters these eastern cities have a distinct advantage today in that they do not need to experiment or to patch up old equipment, but can start fresh with the very best materials that modern science and engineering have produced. French, Belgian and British capital has been most active in the public utility field in the Near East.

During the past ten years a third of the total area of Constantinople has been burned by fires, disastrous because of flimsy wooden houses and inadequate fire-fighting facilities. There will be many opportunities in this and in other Near Eastern cities, as Saloniki, for the erection of office buildings, apartment houses and homes, and American exporters and construction firms will find many attractive possibilities in this line of business. Stone, bricks, cement and lime will be available in the country if the possibilities of cement manufacture are further developed, but lumber, reinforcement materials, wood-work, hardware, sanitary supplies and paint will have to be imported.

To the American visitor, the lack of elevators in the higher buildings—six floors is so far the maximum in Constantinople—is appalling. Office and apartment buildings constructed within the past six years, otherwise fine structures, are without elevators, and very few homes have adequate sanitary or heating conveniences.

The remarkably fine buildings of the American College for Girls at Arnaoutkeuy, five miles out of Constantinople along the Bosphorus—and few, if any, American institutions of learning in America are better installed—are a sample of what American construction firms could undertake. The bungalow type of small house would be admirably suited to the scenic requirements of the Bosphorus. Thousands of these small houses could be rented or sold if available at the present time.

FINANCE AND BANKING

With the exception of Egypt and Greece, which enjoyed favorable positions during the war, the state of government finance in the Near East is everywhere desperate, and can be restored to healthful conditions only by the most careful and farsighted methods. All of the countries have heavy war debts, and the exchange value of their paper currencies (with the exceptions noted) depreciated to less than 20 per cent of normal. The general economic rehabilitation of all this region will be impossible until there is some semblance of permanently peaceful conditions. As soon as the pending political and racial problems are settled, even if not to the satisfaction of all concerned, the various nations will begin to realize that they must again become self-supporting and get back to hard work.

For the first time in our history the United States appears among the creditor nations with respect to the Near East. We loaned $25,000,000 to Rumania, $26,780,000 to Serbia, and $48,236,000 to Greece during the war. The American Relief Administration has also made unofficial advances to the de facto Armenian government of the Caucasus to buy grain and flour. None of these sums, however, is very important in comparison with the loans of European governments, particularly France. France held 60 per cent of the Turkish public debt, and had furnished slightly more than half of the capital of all corporate enterprises in Turkey. The respective figures for Germany are 21 and 33 per cent, and for Great Britain 14 and 13.5 per cent. French funds are also heavily invested in the public debts of Greece, Serbia, Bulgaria, Rumania and, of course, the portion of South Russia included in our field.

Bulgaria comes out of the war with a domestic debt of 5,131,703,380 francs; and a foreign debt of 946,281,091 francs, not including war advances from Germany and Austria-Hungary of more than a billion francs, or the war reparations bill of approximately 4,500,000,000 francs-no light burden for 5,500,000 people. The Turkish bill for war damages has not yet been presented, but $750,000,000 to about $2,000,000,000. In Rumania the issue of paper currency has reached a very large total, while in South Russia and the Caucasus the ruble of various vintages is almost without value. Yet all these countries have their hard-working, long-suffering, and tenacious peoples, who will make a way out of these difficulties as they have from many worse situations in past centuries.

FINANCES OF A MANDATE

Their way out would be so much shorter if they could look with confidence to the United States for the help they need—advice and financial aid. We could count upon amortizing our loans to them within twenty-five years.

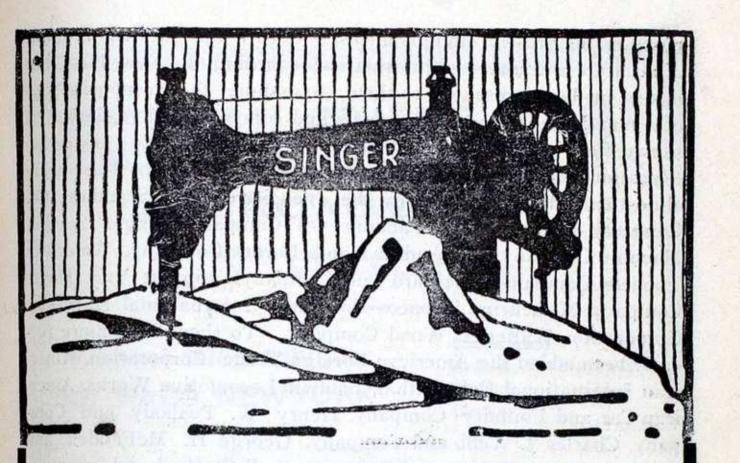

Within the area of the most feasible and desirable mandate Constantinople, Asia Minor and the Trans-Caucasus—we would have been called upon to invest the following sums in public works and improvements:

For purely administrative expenses and military outlay for the first three years (after three years practically no American forces beyond officers for a gendarmerie would have been required), perhaps $10,000,000 would have been needed, in addition to regular revenues. This sum could have been gradually made good from later surplus revenues.

For a successful mandate of this character it would, of course, have been essential to have full control of Turkish finances. The council of the delegates of the foreign bond-holders could not have continued as a semi-sovereign administrative body, nor could a too heavy bill of war damages have been imposed upon Turkey. The detached portions of the former Empire would also have had to bear their fair quotas of the pre-war debt, as they undoubtedly will have to do under any settlement of the Turkish question. Granted the acceptance by the European powers primarily interested of a few such cardinal stipulations, the financial side of such a mandate would have presented no serious problems to any first-class power.

It has been apparent that the American people are not disposed in the present circumstances, and with the limited amount of accurate and unbiased information regarding the Near East that has so far been presented to them, to assume the responsibilities of a mandate. Private individuals and companies have, however, shown more confidence and initiative. Before the war, the noneducational and non-missionary interests in the Near East were almost entirely represented by the agencies of the Standard Oil Company of New York, Vacuum Oil Company, Singer Sewing Machine Company, MacAndrews and Forbes Company, American Tobacco Company, Lorrillard and Company, Liggett and Myers Company, Melachrino Tobacco Company, International Harvester Corporation, Walter A. Wood Company. To them have more recently been added the American Foreign Trade Corporation, American International Corporation, Baldwin Locomotive Works, American Car and Foundry Company, Henry W. Peabody and Company, Charles J. Webb and Company, George H. McFadden and Brother, Amory, Browne and Company, G. A. Stafford and Company, North American Wood Products Corporation, Standard Commercial Company, Commercial Union of America, General Motors Company, Ford Motor Company, Willys-Overland Corporation, Studebaker Corporation, J. I. Case Company, Export Steamship Corporation, A. H. Bull and many others which never before had direct dealings with the Near East.

For a full century American missionary and educational activities have exerted their influence throughout the Near East. A hundred years ago there were as many astwenty American ships in the harbor of Smyrna at one time. It is now apparent that it is our obvious destiny to have a hand in the regeneration of the Near East, whether or not we are yet entirely disposed or ready to take up the task.

Trade with Russia

The State Department of the United States grants liberty but does not promise aid or facilities.

On July 7th the State Department of the United States government made an announcement of modification in the policy of "no trade with Soviet Russia." By this action the State Department removes the blockade from this trade, but presents the privilege of such commerce as an adventure in which the government shall not be embarassed by the efforts of the individual exporters and importers, and in which the latter engage at their own risk without the guarantee of the government or the advantage of normal facilities to commerce. Shipment to Russia of materials susceptible of immediate use for war purposes is prohibited as before.

The announcement follows:

"The restrictions which have heretofore stood in the way of trade and communication with Soviet Russia were today removed by action of the Department of State. Such of these restrictions, however, as pertain to the shipment of material susceptible of immediate use for war purposes, will, for the present at least, be maintained.

"Political recognition, recent or future of any Russian authority exercising or claiming to exercise governmental functions, is neither granted nor implied by this action. It should be emphasized, moreover, that individuals or corporations availing themselves of the present opportunity to trade with Russia will do so on their own responsibility and at their own risk. The assistance which the United States can normally extend to its citizens who engage in trade or travel in some foreign country whose government is recognized by the United States cannot be looked for in the present case since there is no official or representative Russian authority with which this Government can maintain those relations usually subsisting between nations.

"The action which the United States is now taking in nowise constitutes a recognition of the validity of industrial or commercial concessions granted by any existing Russian authority. American citizens availing themselves of the present relaxation of restrictions are warned against the risks incident to acceptance of commodities or other values, the title to which may later be brought into question.

"Since it is not desirable at this time to undertake negociations with the Soviet postal authorities, the Post Office Department will be unable to acceept mail from or to Soviet Russia. There has never been any parcel post convention between the United States and Russia, and this mode of forwarding goods is therefore unavailable."

In explanation of this action the follow-ings upplementary statement was issued:

"While the indications are that Russia has but a small quantity of raw materials available for export, that the purchasing power of Russia is very limited and that for these reasons there will not be considerable trade, if any, with Russia, this Government, however, does not feel that the law-abiding people in Russia should be deprived of any assistance which can be derived from such trading as may be possible.

"The attitude of the United States toward the recognition of any faction in control of Soviet Russia has not changed. This Government is not willing by means of political recognition to lend positive assistance to a faction whose disregard of the principles of democracy is evidenced at home by the maintenance of a minority despotism, and abroad by an insidious campaign of propaganda to subvert popular governmental institutions expressive of the will of the majority."

The Forests of Anatolia

(From report of American Consul Tuck, Samsoun.)

The forests of Anatolia, which have been exploited commercially, can be divided into two general geographical divisions: The forests of the district of Sinope, three in number; and those of the Boyabad district, which also number three. As yet no concerns capable of exploiting these forests on an important scale have undertaken to obtain the necessary concessions from the Ottoman Government. They have been worked mainly by local Turkish contractors on a small scale. Modern sawmill machinery is but little in evidence, and almost all work is done by hand in the most primitive way, There is no doubt that if modern machinery were introduced, and the conservation of these forests undertaken on scientific lines, the lumber industry of Anatolia would assume considerable proportions. Labour is cheap, water power plentiful, and the roads for transportation of lumber to the sea coast are adequate.

Sinope District.

The forest of Seuviouk-Dagh is situated between the villages of Cherze (near the Black Sea coast) and Allatcham, a tobacco-growing centre in Anatolia. It lies about 44 miles from the coast line and measures, roughly, 90 by 60 miles in extent, containing about 225,000 cubic feet of pine and spruce. That it has never been exploited is owing chiefly to the lack of roads to the coast. The forest of Tchantall-Dagh lies between the villages of Boyabad and Avandjik (fifty miles to the west of Sinope) and its extent is approximately 110 by 105 miles. Its distance from the shore is eleven miles, and it contains about 1,500,000 cubic feet of pine and spruce. Logs are either floated down a small river to the village of Olousa or carried by ox cart overland to the coast.

The forest of Ellek-Dagh is situated between Boyabad and Sinope and lies fifty miles from the Black Sea. Cut wood is transported by ox cart to the coast line. There is one stream sawmill and numerous hand. saw mills at a small village in the forest.

Boyabad District.

The town of Bafra is located on right bank of the river Kizil-Irmak (known as Halys) twelve miles from the Black Sea. It is the chief town of the Kaza district, and is under the governmental direction of the sanjak (province) of which-Samsoun is the capital. This district is made up of several small forests, which are at present rapidly disappearing, owing to the lack of conservation on the part of local exploiters. The trees that remain are principally oak, plane trees, beech, and walnut.

The small town of Vezir-Keupru, under the Mutessariflik of the town of Amassia, in the Sivas Vilayet, lies eight miles from the banks of the river Kizil-Irmak and about 95 miles from the sea. The only forest in this particular district worthy of mention is the Tomy-Dagh, which stretches along the river banks of the Kizil-Irmak for about 30 miles and extends back for about 25 miles. It consists chiefly of red pine to the extent of about 240,000 cubic feet. There are a number of small villages on the river banks, with a wood-cutting population. Logs are floated down the river either in drives or they are lashed into rafts.

The little town of Boyabad, in reality a large village, is under the governmental administration of the Vilayet of Castamouni and is situated on the river Gueuk-Irmak, which in turn flows into the Kizil-Irmak, and is about 80 miles distant from the bay of Sinope. This district is very woody and contains several principal forests, which lie between Boyabad and Sinope. Their wood is chiefly used for constructional purposes. Several water-power sawmills are located in the village of Tchakiroglou. There are five smaller forests in this district, which are all situated on the banks of the river Gueuk-Irmak. They are composed chiefly of spruce and beech. Logs are sent down the river to Sinope.

All the forests above mentioned are the property of the Ottoman Government. The concessions necessary for those who desire to exploit these forests must be obtained from the Turkish Ministry of Mines and For ests at Constantinople. All bids for exploitation rights must be put in terms of cubic metres. Some 10 years ago two large firms from Samsoun undertook the exploitation of the forests in the Bafra and Vezir-Keupru regions, in order to supply railway ties for the projected inland conne-tion, Samsoun-Sivas. This was abandoned when war was declared. These firms had previously exported wood to Egypt in considerable quantities. There were, before the war, as many as 10 firms located at the town. of Sinope which were engaged in the construction of sailing vessels for coastwise Black Sea trade. The wood for this industry was obtained chiefly from the Ellek-Dagh forest.

TURKEY'S BUDGETS

(Trade Commissioner E. G. MEARS)

The first regular budget for Turkey was established by Djavid Bey, Minister of Finance, after the success of the Young Turk Party in 1908. The expenditures amounted to 30,000,000 Turkish pounds, against 25,000,000 revenue. In the case of this and all other Turkish budgets the actual performances do not correspond satisfactorily with the budgetary estimates.

The Government tried to put its finances in order. It placed Sir Richard Crawford in charge of customs and Mr. Laurentin charge of finances, Three financial inspectors who had served on the Reform Commission in Macedonia were engaged in the fiscal service. These measures, however, did not prevent the budgetary deficit from increasing each year during the period 1912-1918. In the face of these and previous deficits, Turkey has had recourse to foreign loans. Only one interior loan has been concluded.

After the conclusion of the Berlin treaty it was planned to establish a serious control over the finances, but Turkey objected and this project was abandoned. According to the ninth article of the Berlin treaty Serbia, Bulgaria, Montenegro, and Greece were to be charged with part of the Turkish debt, but this was not applied and these countries paid nothing. Later negotiations begun in Constantinople resulted in creating the Dette Publique Ottomane by virtue of an imperial decree of December 20, 1881, called the Decree of Mouharerm. Since then the management of the financial affairs has been on a more satisfactory basis and the Turkish debt has been progressively moderated.

Various revenues have been granted to the Dette Publique Ottomane, whose council is represented by British, French, Dutch, German, Austro-Hungarian, Italian, and Ottoman delegates. The Dette Publique Ottomane has not limited itself to simply collecting and then applying the revenues. It has initiated effective measures to develop silk growing and vine culture, whose revenues have greatly increased. Important betterments have also been introduced in the fishing industry.

All the revenues managed by the Dette Publique Ottomane have increased in value, and its administration gained public confidence. In fact, the Young Turk Government was so interested that it proposed to intrust the Dette Publique with the entire collection of Turkish tithes, but the outbreak of the war prevented this. In the table below are given statistics from recent budjets. The normal value of the Turkish pound is $ 4.40, but it is now much depreciated.

Colonel William N. Haskell.

Colonel William N. Haskell, Allied High Commissioner for Armenia and Managing Director of the Near East Relief in the Caucasus, left Constantinople for America on August 14th going via Paris.

Colonel Haskell came to the Near East in August, 1919, on appointment by the Supreme Council as High Commissioner for Armenia. A staff of military officers was assigned to him; his field was the Armenian state as it existed in theory; his powers were such as respect in that distraught region for a Supreme Council in Paris might afford him, and what was more vital, the respect which the intelligence, tact and energy of Colonel Haskell and his officers personally inspired in the people with whom they had to deal, for they had no military force to defend or enforce policies. Theirs was pioneer work in a region where wiles and hatreds are century-old traditions, and only men of ability, self-reliance and courage could have started in on this indefinable task of realizing the fiat of the Supreme Council, that there should be an Armenia.

At the end of a year, through the supplies furnished by the Near East Relief and through the counsel and activity of Colonel Haskell and his assistants Armenia has survived and has become a more tangible concept not only in the minds of the Armenians themselves but in the minds of the rest of the world. Armenia was an orphanage; one-half of the population has been fed through charity; and 25,000 children have been cared for and are 10w being cared for in institutions of the Near East Relief. Armenia was an orphan; it was the task of Colonel Haskell and his aim to help her to self-support and self-reliance. One year ago she was a starving land. That, at the end of a year, she can claim a government and show means of sustenance for a period of eight months to come are the best comment on the work of Colonel Haskell and his helpers and the energy of the people.

The boundaries of Armenia have not been set. There are dangers which confront her within and without. Economically she has not yet reached the point where she is self-sustaining, and she needs support in materials and money as well as in counsel for some time to come in order to make the state a reality. It is believed that the Supreme Council will make its fiat good by rendering the necessary assistance. Colonel Haskell has pointed the way, and advised on resources necessary, and his term as Allied Commissioner has come to an end. All the American army officiers in the territory and the Caucasus have been ordered out with him, as they were assigned to him in his capacity as Allied High Commissioner. Officially and unofficially the Armenians in the state and throughout the Levant have given expression of their gratitude to Colonel Haskell and his staff for their splendid service.

The relief work in Armenia and the Caucasus will go on under Mr. Ernest A. Yarrow, who has been appointed Director of the Near East Relief in that region; but the state must have the friendly political interest of other nations, and in addition the interest of men who can take advantage of the material resources of Armenia to assure it life. It cannot be doubted that the attitude of the people favors the attention of American trade and enterprise.

ANGLO - FRENCH OIL AGREEMENT

The governments of Great Britain and France have come to an agreement on cooperation in exploitation of oil supplies, which has just been made public in a White Paper (Cd. 675). The agreement, the result of prolonged negotiations, was signed by the respective representatives, Professor Sir John Cadman, Director in (harge of the Petroleum Department of Great Britain, and M. Philippe Berthelot, Directeur des Affaires Politiques et Commerciales au Ministère des Affaires Etrangères, on April 24th, 1920, and confirmed the foll wing day at San Remo by Mr. David Lloyd George and M. A. Millerand.

While the agreement covers oil sources in French and British colonies, particular interest attaches to the territory of the Near East, where most extensive arrangements for exploi ation are anticipated. Clauses with regard to the Mesopotamian field permit participation of the native government with a 20% share, while British and French interests share the rest on the basis of 62% and 18%, respectively. The memorandum omits detail on sources of anticipated supplies of Anatolia.

The following is the text:

By order of the Governments of France and Great Britain, the undersigned representative shave resumed, by mutual consent, the consideration of an agreement regarding petroleum.

10. In consideration of the above-mentioned arrangements the French Government shall agree, if it is desired and as soon as application is made, to the construction of two separate pipe-lines and railways necessary for their construction and maintenance and for the transport of oil from Mesopotamia and Persia through French spheres of influence to a port or ports on the Eastern Mediterranean. The port or ports shall be chosen in agreement between the two Governments.

11. Should such pipe-line and rail-ways cross territory within a French sphere of influence, France undertales to give every facility for the rights of crossing without any royalty or way-leaves on the oil transported. Nevertheless, compensation shall be payable to the landowners for the surface occupied.

12. In the same way France will give facilities at the terminal port for the acquisition of the land necessary for the erection of depo's, railways, refineries, loading wharves, &c. Oil thus exported shall be exempt from export and transit dues. The material necessary for the construction of the pipe-lines, railways, refineries, and other equipment shall also be free from import duties and wayleaves.

13. Should the said petroleum company desire to lay a pipe-line and a railway to the Persian Gulf, the British Government will use its good office to secure similar facilities for that purpose.

14. North Africa and other Colonies.

—The French Government will give facilities to any Franco-British group or groups of good standing, which furnish the necessary guarantees and comply with French laws, for the acquisition of oil concessions in the French colonies, protectorates and zones of influence, including Algeria, Tunis and Morocco. It should be noted that the French

Fuel Oil at Panama Canal

Through the Governor of the Panama Canal it has been announced that the price of fuel oil at Canal terminals would be increased to $3.50 per barrel from August 1st. Bunkers would be limited to sufficient oil to reach next bunkering station. This will apply to all ships whether or no they have contracts with oil companies.

Notes from Saloniki

There recently took place in the outskirts of Saloniki an interesting agricultural machine demonstration. A tractor manufactured by the Moline Plow Company of Moline, Illinois, as demonstrated by Mr. C. E. Moore, representative of that travelling company, whose Saloniki agent is Mr. Robert Benkoil of the Standard Commercial Export and Finance Corporation of New York. operative Association of Serres and a large number of spectators interested in the development of agriculture in Macedonia. A representative of the American Consulate at Saloniki also attended. A large plot of ground was plowed and many favorable comments were heard.

It is gratifying to note that American manufacturers of agricultural machines are making a very serious effort to enter the Macedonian field. Despite the strong competition from British makers as well as the competition of pre-war machines of Austrian make American machinery is well received. For the present, however, individual farmers cannot purchase a machine because of lack of necessary capital. The farmers of Mace onia could do a great deal, however, by resorting to group -buying. In this way several machines could be purchased by one community for the benefit of all its members.

It is understood that the Serres Cooperative Association, which is an organization prepared to do group buying, is contemplating the purchase of agricultural machines.

The Market

WHEAT: The harvest is good. It is 50% superior to that of last year, though the quality is inferior on account of the rains.

COCOONS: The output is estimated to be about 100,000 okes (280,000 lbs.). The prices vary from 10 to 15 drachmas per oke ($1.25 to $1.75 per oke).

OLIVE OIL: The next olive crop will be abundant, it is predicted, and a reduction in olive oil prices is expected.

OPIUM: The crop has been affected by the rains. The total quantity available does not exceed 4,000 okes (11.200 lbs,). Prices vary from drachmas 80 to 100 per oke ($2.19 to $2.60 per lb.).

Tobacco: This year's sowing has been on a larger scale. The crops seem to be good but the quality is somewhat inferior. The production of Serres, Drama, and Saloniki could be estimated at seven million okes (19,600,000 lbs.)

WOOL: White wool from 7-8 drachmas the oke, but quantity sufficient for local needs only.

HIDES: No transactions. Frice of lamb skins has gone down from des. 22 to 12 the pair.

COTTON: There is no stock on hand. Present price is from des. 101/2 to 11 the oke for American, and des. 8 to 8.5 for that of Adana.

Greek Citrus Fruit Crop.

The citrus fruit crop of Greece for 1920 is estimated as follows:

Districts. Oranges Number. Calamata, Messenia... 10,000,000

Sparta, Lacedemon	12,000,000
Arta, Epirus	5,000,000
Crete Island, Aegean Sea	25,000,000
Chios Island, Aegean Sea	250,000,000
Total	302,000,000
Districts.	Mandarins.
Leonidon, Laconia	3,000,000
Crete Island	10,000,000
Poros, Hermione	30,000,000
Andros Island, Cyclades	4,000,000
Karystos, Euboea	6,000,000
Total	53,000,000

Government statistics of this crop are not available, but this data was gathered from reliable dealers in these fruits.

Citrons, which are grown on the island of Crete, appear to have been a failure, as information received from this island states that there will be no crop this year. However, there are still about 600 tons of citrons in brime left over from previous crops.

Economic Notes on Turkey and Adjacent Territories

(From report of Imperial Ottoman Bank)
Months of June and July, 1920.

Adrianople: The harvests seem to be abundant. The barley crop is superior to that of last year. Agricultural work is behind schedule this year owing to the mobilization of the peasants performing the work.

The sale of the cocoon crop has ended. The output was about 30,000 kilograms of good quality, which were sold from 120 to 150 piasters ($1.10-$1.35) per kilo.

It is affirmed that the country will be abundantly supplied with cereals, if the summer sowings are favored by the weather.

In spite of the commercial crisis, which prevailed on account of the political events, the imports amounted to Ltqs. 100,000 ($98,000) for the month of June. The imports consisted of ten wagons; three of sugar, two of American fats and oils, two of petroleum, etc.

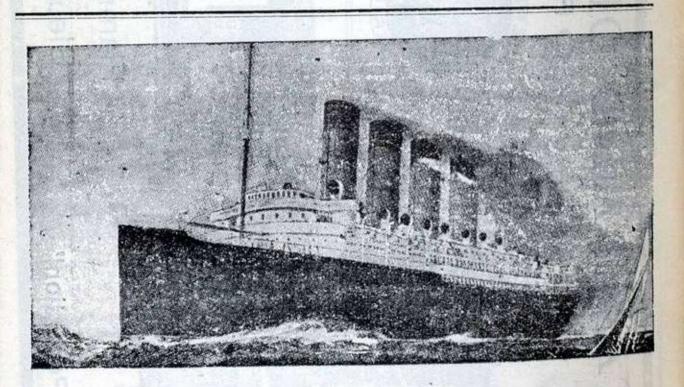

The exports, which amounted to Ltqs. 25,000 ($24,500.00), consisted principally of chees, and about $5000.00 worth of wool.

Smyrna: The harvests are said to be satisfactory, the crops abundant and exceeding those of last year.

The vineyards are in good condition, in spite of the unusual rainfalls. Their output is approximated at from 400,—5,000,000 quintals.

The tobacco is also good. The total output would easily attain the 11 million kilos mark. The opium output has also been very satisfactory.

The difficulty in obtaining adequate transportation facilities, resulting from the unstable political situation, hinders agricultural work and prevents realization of fullest returns from harvests.

Commerce with the interior is almost stagnant. Among the articles exported are: Valonea, tobacco, cotton, raisins and figs. The restoration of commercial relations with the interior is anticipated soon. Some buyers from the interior have appeared in Smyrna and the markets showed some animation in dry goods, skins, and groceries.

Samsoun: American firms are continuing to buy tobacco at high as prices. The tobacco went up as high as Ltqs. 181/2 the batman ($17.50 per 16.95 lbs.) for the Samsoun-Bafra qualities.

The people of the regions of Maamouret-ul-Aziz, Diarbekir, Sivas and Angora still come to Samsoun for their purchases of hardware, dry goods, groceries, etc., thereby making the city important.

Rhodes: The cereal harvests have been very satisfactory; that of olives is expected to be excellent.

SPONGES: The end of the war encouraged the sponge fishing on the Tripolitan coast and around the Dodecanese Islands in the Agean Sea. Results are good this year. England is the biggest buyer. Other wholesale buyers have formed a syndicate.

CILICIA

Mersina: The harvest has been exceedingly satisfactory. It is said to be far superior to that of last year.

In the neighborhood of Keretash, near Selefkia, the crop has been exceptionally satisfactory. Merchants coming from there state that the harvest amounts to about five times as much as that of last year.

In the Cilician plains half of the cereals, which have been harvested during the Armistice, have been brought into the surrounding villages while the other half is on the fields where it may burn totally or lose a great part of its value.

The lack of skilled farm hands is felt in the cotton industry as the weeds growing around the cotton plants are not being removed, hence a considerable loss is expected.

The chaotic political situation has contributed much to the slackening of business. Nothing is being done in this district at present.

The needs in hardware, leather, paper, glassware, etc. are always great, but the importation of the aforesaid articles is very difficult owing to the lack of steamship co nections and the slowness with which European firms fill their orders

The goods destined for the interior cannot be shipped because the Mer sina-Tarsus-Adana Railroad line has been cut.

Adana: The agricultural situation is most deplorable, due to the hostile acts of the Turkish Nationalist forces The barley harvest has been stopped since the beginning of June.

The first shipments, which arrived from the interior, were sold at 8 piasters per oke (about $0.03 per pound) These were resold at about 15 pia-ters per oke (about $0.05 per pound), and the prices are going up.

The harvesting of wheat has also been affected as that of barley.

The cotton fields have been almost abandoned as no worker dares to be away from the city because of hostile bands, and there is scarcely any movement into or out of the city.

The interruption caused a general scarcity of imported articles and even of foodstuffs, vegetables and meats. Sugar quoted at 60 piasters per oke (about $0.20 per pound) in May has reached the 180 piaster mark (about This obliged the 50.60 per 1b.). American Hospital in Constantinople.

(Rev. Charles T. Riggs)

Friday, August 20th, was a day to be remembered for the Americans resident in Constantinople, for on that day was formally opened the American Hospital for which they have been working for nine years. Through the energies of a group of representative men and women, the dream of 1911 has become the reality of 1920. On the Divan Yolou, or main street of the backbone of Stamboul, not far from the Gedik Pasha School and the Grand Bazaar, between the Burnt Column and the Bayazid Square, a fine old Konak was found, affording ample room for the beginning of such an enterprise; and this property has been leased for a term of three years, with an option on it for the future. For several months preparations have been going on, till finally the building is ready and the equipment installed, and work has begun.

All the other foreign hospitals, such as the British, French, Italian, Bulgarian, the former German hospital and others, are on the other side of the Golden Horn, in Pera or in Galata; and even most of the relatively efficient Turkish hospitals in Stamboul are not in this vicinity, so that the new institution has a field all its own. That it has great possibilities for work has already been shown by the steady stream of outpatients that for many months have come to Dr. Hoover for treatment. As stated by Rear-Admiral Bristol in his opening address, the income from this source alone has reached a thousand liras per month, even before the hospital proper was opened.

Most of the Americans in the city, and many other friends also gathered last Friday for the inaugural exercises, and were shown by members of the staff about the spacious building, the outstanding characteristics of which are airy rooms and simple but most attractive furnishings. There are six main wards, holding eight to a dozen beds each, with several private rooms, usually with two beds; there are also accommodations for outpatient clinics, an operating room, a room for dressings, and comfortable quarters for the nurses and physicians. About eighty beds have been installed, but two or three times that number could easily be put in without crowding, should the hospital grow as is expected.

After the guests had been shown about, they gathered in one of the main halls for all sorts of eats and drinks (of the strictly eighteenth-amendment type); and then Major C. Classin Davis, of the American Red Cross, called for order and introduced as the speaker of the occasion, Rear-Admiral Mark L. Bristol, the American High Commissioner, whose address follows:

"LADIES AND GENTLEMEN,

"You have been invited here this afternoon to join in the simple ceremonies connected with the culmination of the efforts of the Americans in this locality. These efforts have continued over several years. As long ago as April, 1911, a chapter of the American Red Cross was organized in this city. One of the first acts of this chapter of the American Red Cross was to recommend and take steps to provide for the establishment of an American hospital in Constantinople. The prime movers in this undertaking at that time were the American Minister, Mr. John Ridgley Carter, the American Consul-General Mr. Ravndal, Mr. W. W. Peet, Treasurer of the American Board of Foreign Missions, and r. Mary Mills Patrick, the President of the Constantinople College for Girls. A few years previous to this the plans for a proposed hospital had been prepared. Likewise, previously, Dr. Patrick had been making plans to establish in the Constantinople College for Girls a course of medicine for women and a training school for nurses.

Since that time the originators of the idea have never ceased to keep up the agitation for the establishment of an American hospital. The Balkan wars and the Great War, that has now happily come to an end, interfered with the accomplishment of the establishment of an American hospital in Constantinople.

East Wing of American Hospital

However, the originators have been persistent in their efforts. It was necessary for Dr. Patrick to obtain the authority of the college trustees and the funds for the establishment of a course in medicine at her college. Her efforts in this direction were successful last year. And now she is able to offer as assistance to the establishment of an American hospital not only her influence, but material interest in the shape of funds. A hospital was a necessary adjunct to the course in medicine and surgery at the college.

The American Board of Foreign Missions has had hospitals in the interior of Turkey, but none here at its headquarters. Now, after years of effort by its local representatives, it seems assured that the Board will contribute to the support of a hospital in Constantinople.

Before the war there was a limited number of Americans in Constantinople as compared with the present time. Since the armistice between the Allies and Turkey there has been a large influx of Americans into this part of the world. These Americans were headed, of course, by the return of the governmental officials, who were followed by a large number of men and women to take part in the great work of relief needed as a result of the war. These were followed by American business men establishing business houses in Constantinople as well as agencies in the other countries. The local American Y. M. C. A. has again opened its doors, with branches throughout the country; the Y. M. C. A. has established a special branch for American sailors; the Knights of Columbus are establishing a club for American sailors; the Young Women's Christian Association has established its headquarters here, and branches in Smyrna and Beirut; also certain members of their association are working with the Relief Committee in the interior of Turkey. Latterly, the American Red Cross has established a base here for south-eastern Europe and has sent a special representative of the Commissioner to Europe in charge of this base.

Mrs. ANNIE E. ROTHROCK

There is a United States Naval Force of several vessels now operating in the Near East. This means that there are always several hundred American officiers and sailors in Constantinople and the vessels are scattered through all the ports of the eastern Mediterranean, Aegean and Black seas.

Thus, several hundred Americans are now living or working in the Near East. In the American Near East Relief Committee alone there are over five hundred workers in the field scattered throughout Turkey and the Caucasus.

The American missionaries, some of whom remained at their posts throughout the war, are now back at their posts, but for the time being are working with the Relief Committee, making a common cause for the relief of suffering humanity. In some cases, especially as regards hospitals in the interior of Turkey, they have resumed their pre-war activities; and some of their schools have been reopened and are operating.

A number of new American business firms have established offices in Constantinople and will be establishing agencies in the interior. There are over twenty of these firms at this time.

This large number of Americans in this part of the world, when they are ill or in need of medical or surgical attention, will naturally wish for American hospitals and American medical officers as well as American nurses. These desires have been apparent in renewed agitations for an American hospital in Constantinople. These agitations have taken definite form in this first attempt at the founding of an American hospital in Constantinople. Those who have originated the idea and have constantly worked for it are to be congratulated upon this final success and I feel certain will, in the future, be still more gratified at the success of this undertaking.

I am gla to say at the present time we are able to place before you a project that thus far has been successfully carried through by the assistance of funds from the local Chapter of the American Red Cross, from funds pro"Anything American" vided by the Constantinople College for Girls, and by donations of funds from individuals, and still further by the supply of equipment on the part of the American Red Cross and the Near East Relief, and we are now able to open this hospital and proceed to operate it. However, you can all see that more funds are necessary to expand this work as regards the equipment of the hospital and to operate it for the needs of all American interests represented here and to provide for research. Up to the present its income has been established by the out-patient department while carrying on the work of fitting up the hospital and with a limited personnel, not to mention the inconveniences of the temporary and scant equipment.

As stated in the plan for the foundation of the hospital it is intended to make this a thoroughly up-to-date American hospital. It is intended to make it of benefit to the community at large. It must not be dominated by, nor serve any one special interest. Every American should have a personal interest in the success of this undertaking because he or she wants to feel that there is available the best kind of a hospital if it is needed and also because of pride in American achievement.

The Director, Dr. A. R. Hoover, is already in charge; likewise, the Superintendent, Mrs. Annie E. Rothrock. These two, with untiring energy, have had charge of fitting up this building. You can all see by what has been accomplished how much credit they deserve. I feel sure the future results under their direction of the hospital will more than illustrate the wisdom of their selection.

The Executive Committee will be immediately selected and then every American and American institution can come forward to support that Com-

I hereby announce the foundation of the AMERICAN HOSPITAL OF CONSTANTINOPLE. The doors of the Hospital will be opened regularly for patients on Monday next, the 23rd of August."

According to the plan for foundation of the hospital it is the intention "to establish a hospital that will embody the most modern and efficient practices of American hospitals. This hospital will provide for all purposes of medicine and surgery and will include laboratories for research work. Also it will include a nurses' training school. In addition to the resident hospital patients it will operate an out-patient department.

American Portable Houses At Constantinople.

On the heights above Bebek over looking the Bosphorus, five miles above Constantinople by water and three from the city by road, about fifty American portable houses have been erected. The cottages give the locality a certain resemblance to an American suburban village, and are in striking contrast to the large rambling structures, gabled and fretted, but often unpainted, that line the shores of the Bosphorus or climb its steep banks. They form a little inland village—there are few near the city that venture away from the water—which retains, however, the view of the matchless panorama of the Bosphorus, and escapes the rattle of the life along the shore.

- A member of the local Chapter of the American Red Cross designated by that Chapter.
- A representative of the American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions.
- President of the Constantinople College for Girls, so long as that College maintains a medical department in co-operation with this hospital.
- The Managing Director of the American Near East Relief Committee in Constantinople.
- 7. The President of the American Chamber of Commerce for the Levant.
- The Representative in Constantinople of the American Red Cross Commissioner of Europe.

"An Executive Committee is constituted for operating the hospital in accordance with the policy laid down by the Advisory Committee. This Committee shall be composed of three members selected from those American activities located in Constantinople that contribute to the foundation and maintenance of this hospital.

"The above officials including the treasurer, director and superintendient shall be American born citizens of the United States; likewise, the leading members of the personnel of the hospital; the different races that are citizens of Turkey will be fairly represented in order that this hospital shall be considered for the benefit of the community as a whole".

After the address of Admiral Bristol Dr. Abdullah Djevdet Bey, Director-General of the Sanitary Board of the city, followed with an address of congratulation in French, setting forth the appreciation of the country for the philanthropic work of America in Turkey and especially his gratitude for the opening of this hospital.

America now has another institution in Constantinople through which to show her desire to serve and to be a benefit to everybody.

Panorama of Bosphorus from Bebek Heights

It is true that all cities the world over have been suffering during the past six years from stagnation in the building trade save where the necessities of war directed, and the congestion in these centers since the Armistice is only slowly being relieved. Constantinople has known no considerable period of normal times since the revolution in 1908, and wherever there has been devastation by fire since that time, the district has remained fallow ground. It is estimated that 40,000 houses have been destroyed during that period. It is only since the beginning of the present year that any construction has taken place, and this has been confined almost exclusively to commercial houses, and has given no relief whatsoever to the residential portions of the city or to its suburbs, that have not escaped conflagration.

For the burned districts within the limits proper of the city the municipality is preparing maps preliminary to a certain amelioration of the distressing confusion that had characterized the earlier building in these quarters. No new construction is allowed previous to the preparation of the map for the particular district. It is proposed that only buildings of bricks, stone or concrete or with such protective material against fire be permitted in areas for reconstruction. For the present this will not be required in the suburban towns along the Bosphorus. Certain foreign corporations and firms of the city have outlined schemes for a series of "model tenements," but plans have not been realized. Even the ordinary building materials must for the most part be imported, and Constantinople is now more than ever dependent on the outside world for the simplest needs in this line at a time when transportation is difficult and rates are high. lumber trade especially has suffered from these obstacles, and arrivals are few. The privilege of deck cargo for lumber and house parts would be one great boon to this trade for this district and for the country that has the materials for export. Just now crude brick from the kilns near the city is the most available material.

Higher rentals in the city have driven many to suburban localities of easier terms—though still exorbitant; the higher up the Bosphorus the more favorable the rates. Passenger transportation to districts outside is a daily torture on account of the crowds that pack the boats compelled to a restricted service, and the street cars, likewise limited in number. And still the city remains full and utterly uncomfortable.

For the suburban district the firm of Dilsizian Brothers has carried out the plan of importing portable cottages. The cottages were brought from America, with divisions and parts so arranged that it has taken but slight instruction and practice to have these set up. A few were first

The bungalows look very neat and comfortable nestling on the hill-side. While at first with their tailor-made appearance they somewhat startle those accustomed here to enjoy the whims of oriental fancy in building,—paint, too, was unorthodox, but has found its way here even as a beautifier, - they very readily come to suggest a cozy home, and practical for the many small families that cannot use, furnish, or make comfortable the spacious appartments of the larger structures.

The houses on Bebek Heights contain from four to seven rooms each of good size, and a verandah which in some of the houses is screened and may be made into a sleeping porch. The interiors are lined in various ways, sometimes with the regular lath and plaster, and the effort is made to furnish a home comfortable both in summer and winter.

The village has its avenues, but the arrangement of the houses conforms also to the slight unevenness in the lay of the land, taking advantage of the most attractive sites. In the center of the area there will be a park with spaces for sports, tennis, etc.

There will be a central electric light plant, and a water system to furnish drinking water as well as water for bath rooms, the gardens, etc. Plans for the best sewage system are being carried out as the high location easily allows. Individual stoves must furnish the heat, but perhaps some day a central heating plant will complete a most modern installation. The houses are for rent at a very reasonable rate.

An autobus service to the city every half hour will make the village most convienient for commuters and shoppers as well. An excellent road, completed during the war, runs to the very entrance of the village. The two American institutions, Robert College and Constantinople College for Girls, are within easy walking distance, respectively above and below the village.

The idea to import portable houses on a large scale at this opportune moment was a stroke of enterprise on the part of the firm. America had the material, the style was attractive, and the occasion advantageous. With the advent of peace and absolute security in this region, there is no reason why the population of an over-crowded city may not take advantage of the excellent building sites along the highways on the hills back from the Bosphorus; and it can be anticipated that a series of villages similar to Bebek Heights will spring up in new suburbs of Constantinople, as the example has been set, and the model is at hand.

Greek Merchant Fleet

The constant increase of the Greek merchant fleet since 1900 is shown by the following figures:

	Number of	Tonnage
	steamers
1900	122	114,484
1909	299	290,540
1911	343	387,684
1913	389	493,404
1915	474	549,983

During the submarine war the merchant fleet suffered severely and on the 1st of January, 1919, numbered only 204 vessels with a total tonnage of 161,522. Greece lost 193 steamers of 403,383 tonnage, and 79 steamers had been sold to foreigners.

Since the armistice every effort is being used to make good the losses, and it is expected that shortly the fleet will surpass the tonnage of 1915. The Dalavari Bros. have bought two steamers of 3,000 tons each at a total cost of £200,000; Embirico Bros., 4; "The Greek Maritime Co.," 2; N. Abatiello, 11; Arvaniti, 9; Ger. Vergheti, 2; N. Likiardopoulos, 2; and many others have purchased single steamers. The total tonnage of these recent purchases amounts to 300,000 tons with a value of 230 million Furthermore, 20 drachmas. passenger steamers have been bought. Also, it is to be noted, that more steamers are of a greater tonnage than those which were constructed for the Greeks before the war.

Six of the eleven steamers ordered by Mr. Abatiello are under construction at Hong-Kong, while England has a large share in the orders.

In the list given are not included all the boats owned by Greek shipowners; many of such boats are for the time being not navigating under the national flag.

BULGARIA

(Notes from a Correspondent)

Bulgaria offers a promising field for the investment of American capital, as almost no foreign capital has entered the country since the armistice, due to the natural post-war restraint in the western European states. The government is about to secure a loan at London or Paris in return for which various concessions are being offered. A Franco-Belgian company opened offices recently in Sofia. Other foreign corporations are also making a beginning there but the field is still practically unoccupied. It can be stated definitely that both the government and influential bankers would look with special favor toward the investment of American capital. The best opportunities for investment are in mines, street railways, the textile industry, the manufacture of farming implements, shoe factories, and eventually in the meat packing industry. For these latter the country itself can supply most of the raw material.

Bulgaria is a nation of farmers, who live on and till their own land. Owing to its predominant agricultural character and the strength of the agrarian element, the country is not subject to dangerous radicalism. It is as peaceful as the United States.

Besides the law voted by the Sobrania, according to the terms of which all the young men and young women, aged, respectively, 20 to 22 years, and 18 to 19 years, are subject to a national labor service, another law, not less important, due also to the initiative of Mr. Stambouliski, the prime minister. has passed its first reading in the According to the latter law, House. all land cultivated or appropriate to cultivation (fields, prairies, etc.,) belonging to individuals and exceeding 300 decares (about 75 acres) to an individual, which is not under the direct cultivation of its owner, and all the forests and pastureland, likewise in private hands, and exceeding an area of 500 decares (about 125 acres), as well as all land and forests under litigation between communes, whose status is not definitively regulated within two months after the passing of the law, will be declared the property of the state. As the state does not possess sufficient state land for the needs of the population under the old order, the law in question will increase the amount and help to provide for the refugees who have during the more recent period come to Bulgaria. The amount which the state will be able to reckon upon is about one-half million decares (about 125,000 acres).

However, the towns are growing rapidly. Advantageous street railway, electric light and other concessions are now and in the near future to be disposed of.

On the whole the country is prosperous, The crops for the past two years have been especially bountiful. A recent government report of crops estimates that there will be a million tons of grain for export from the crops of the present year. After Czecho-Slovakia, Poland, Austria and Italy are furnishing the market for Bulgarian cereals. The whole population has set to work with the intention of putting the nation squarely on its feet in the shortest possible time.

Constantinople Market

With the signing of peace there were certain symptoms of an amelioration of the commercial situation. However, the Nationalist movement still keeps the interior of Asia Minor disturbed, and the Greek occupation of territory in the western part, and the installation of the Greek regime in Thrace with a temporary restriction on importations from these districts, has sensibly reduced transactions with the regions immediately and naturally dependent on the capital. At certain risks some products of the interior have arrived in the city, leaving Asia Minor by way of Adalia Bolou-Ineboli, but merchandize has not had even that facility in reaching the interior. Transactions with Rumania, Bulgaria, Crimea, and occasional trade with the Caucasus have meant some relief. The end of the harvests and the approach of winter, when land transportation will be more difficult in the surrounding territory, favor trade restoration, and renewed activity is looked for in the near future.

PERSONALIA

Mr. G. de Lerche, Athens representative of the Irving National Bank, New York, was in Constantinople on business the early part of the mouth Mr. A. Aprahamian, foreign traveling representative for Mitchell Motors Company, Inc., Racine, U.S. A., is visiting the Levant for an investigation of the field for agencies of the company. He was impressed with the lively demand in Constantinople for cars.

Mr. E. D. Chamarakis, of Rethymno, Crete, has been looking after business interests at Constantinople during the month. Mr. Chamarakis has active branches of his firm in other stations of the Aegean and his foreign correspondents are ready distributors of his high grade Cretan products. It was a pleasure of the Chamber to receive a visit from Mr. Chamarakis, who has long been an energetic supporter of Levant-American trade.

Mr. Otis A. Glazebrook, Consul at Jerusalem, has a leave from his post in Palestine and has returned to the United States for an indefinite stay. Mr. Oscar Heizer, former Consul at Bagdad, will occupy the post at Jerusalem; he took over the duties there on August 7th. Mr. Heizer gave very substantial assistance to the American Chamber of Commerce interests in Mesopotamia and we are assured his support in developing our connections in Palestine.

The month of August has seriously depleted the number of Directors of the Chamber at Constantinople; some have left for furloughs in cooler climes and others have gone away on business. Mr. Heek is on a business trip of investigation of markets in the eastern Mediterranean; Mr. Cartali is at Karlsbad; Mr. Constantinidi is in France; Mr. Curmusi has gone to England; Mr. Hirzel is in Switzerland; Mr. Nergararian has left for America; and Mr. Fresco is also out of the city on business.
